

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT REFORM 🕪 TRANSFORMING LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Candidate Induction Frequently Asked Questions

What is candidate induction?

- This is a training module to assist people who are thinking of becoming a local government councillor.
- Candidates need to understand both the role they will potentially be taking on and what laws affect the way they conduct their campaign.
- Specifically, induction will cover:
 - Role of council and council members.
 - Election and campaigning rules (includes gifts and social media).

Who has to do candidate training?

- Every person who wishes to be a candidate in the local government election in October 2019.
- Every person who wishes to be a candidate in any other local government election.

How will the induction be delivered?

• The module will be available online through the Department of Local Government, Sport and Cultural Industries' website by the end of July 2019.

Is there an exam?

- There are guizzes included to help your understanding of the material.
- There is no test that you must pass.
- The module is designed to help you make good decisions.

What if I don't have access to the Internet?

 You will be able to visit your local library or local government offices to get access.

What is the cost?

The online induction module is free.

I have a disability. How accessible is the module?

- The candidate induction has been designed to meet the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines 2.0 level AA as per the Accessibility and Inclusivity Standard.
- If you need any assistance in accessing the induction please contact the Department on 9492 9762 or actreview@dlgsc.wa.gov.au.

Who has been involved in the development of the candidate induction?

- The Induction was developed by the Department of Local Government, Sport and Cultural Industries and incorporates examples from other States and Territories.
- In terms of the induction content, input was sought and received from:
 - The Western Australian Electoral Commission (WAEC)
 - The Western Australian Local Government Association (WALGA)
 - Local Government Professional (LG Pro)
 - Current councillors

Does it apply to council members who are recontesting their seat?

- Yes, it will serve as a refresher for them. Rules and expectations change.
- While serving councillors already have experience in running campaigns, being reminded of the rules governing a campaign is always useful.

How will this be enforced?

- Every person nominating for council is required to declare that they have completed the candidate induction at the time of nomination.
- There are penalties for making false or misleading statements on the nomination form (a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine or 1 year imprisonment).

Will the list of people who have completed the induction package be published?

- No, some of the people that complete the induction may choose not to be candidates.
- Publication of their names would be an unwarranted invasion of their privacy.

Will returning officers be given access to the list of people who have completed the induction?

- When completing the online induction, participants will be required to advise of the local government area for which they are intending to nominate.
- The department will be able to provide a list to the returning officers for that district so that they can confirm that candidates have completed the induction.

Will local governments still be able to conduct their own induction sessions?

- Yes, a local government can still provide their own district specific induction if they wish, and this is encouraged
- This will supplement the online induction as it will be specific to the local government.

Who do I contact if I am having problems?

 You can contact the Department of Local Government, Sport and Cultural Industries on 9492 9762 or actreview@dlgsc.wa.gov.au
