PROTOCOLS

The Yamaji Yanda Archive Project is a heritage initiative which seeks to build an archival photographic collection of historical images shared by Aboriginal people from the Mid West.

This is a community memories project which will assist in building understanding and appreciation of local Aboriginal cultural identity, while creating a historical database which can be accessed by current and future generations.

All images donated to the Collection will be given the following consideration:

- Images which contain potentially secret/sacred materials must be screened by the appropriate language group before being added.
- Images must not portray very sick/injured/dead persons.
- Images which include nudity must reflect traditional ways of being and cannot be sexualised.
- Family/Deceased Estate of a deceased person may request that digitally recorded images or records be removed from the public collection for cultural reasons if a formal request is made to the City.

In the development of this Collection, the Geraldton Regional Library acknowledges community consultation carried out by the State Library of Western Australia and protocols established by ATSILIRN – Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders Library, Information and Resource Network.
